About Us

Maryland Philanthropy Network was founded by Baltimore-area grantmakers in 1983 to provide a forum in which philanthropic peers could come together to learn and collaborate. Today, we are a statewide association that represents about 115 member organizations who together steward more than $9 billion in charitable assets.

About The Fund

The 2020 Fund to Advance Impact aimed to raise $750,000 to enhance Maryland Philanthropy Network's visibility and accessibility, expand the ways in which the organization supports the evolving needs and aspirations of its statewide membership, and support the organization's move to a new office space.

While Maryland Philanthropy Network's name change in early 2019 provided an opportunity to reassert their statewide focus, this move, necessitated by the sale of the organization's longtime home, offered a chance to re-imagine the ways Maryland Philanthropy Network interacts with its members. The 2020 Fund to Advance Impact was launched to further elevate the organization as the statewide center that warmly welcomes members and partners and convenes conversations and collaborations to enhance the engagement and impact of Maryland's philanthropic community.

Adapting

Days after moving to the new office space in March 2020, the Maryland Philanthropy Network staff headed home in response to the rapidly spreading novel coronavirus. The organization transitioned to a cloud-based server and phone system in preparation for the move which allowed for a more seamless shift to remote operations for staff and members.

Over a year later, the staff is primarily working remotely and all programs and meetings are being held virtually. The staff and Board of Directors are eager to welcome members to the new space once it's safe to convene in person again.

About the Space

Maryland Philanthropy Network's new offices are located in The Hangar Building, a revitalized, former industrial space at 1600 West 41st Street in Baltimore adjacent to Union Collective. This 4,000 square foot space features:

- a polished and comfortable conference room with audio-visual systems for improved remote access and participation,
- casual meeting areas for pre- and post-program conversations,
- an open kitchen and beverage station for members to use and enjoy,
- gallery space featuring Maryland artists curated by the Maryland State Arts Council and other art-focused partners,
- plenty of FREE parking with easy front-door access,
- and of course, offices for the staff and workspaces available as a benefit to members.
